President Will Make Non-political Survey of Dry Belt Devastation While Governor and Knox In-vade Eastern Territory.

Guffey Cites Primary Returns as Conclusive Proof of Democratic Success in November.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP) Governor Alf M. Landon and Colonel Frank Knox will carry the republican campaign into New York and New England this week while President Roosevelt travels west to survey the drought ravages.

With nominations to national or state office also being made in four states, the political calendar promises more activity than in any seven-day span since the June conventions. Another series of statements for and against the New Deal started out here today.

Senator Joseph F. Guffey, chairman of the democratic senatorial campaign committee, said votes in primaries and registration in California, Idaho, Kentucky and other states "show a vastly greater number of democrats participating than republicans." He called this "proof of decisive democratic success."

The republican national committee said Senator Charles McNary, the Iowa leader, recently told friends at Salem, Ore., he would keep fighting to return the party to power "until somebody carries me out."

"I have no apathy for votes I made in the last three years," he was quoted, in discussing his support of some Roosevelt measures. "I think the republican party and its leaders showed great sportsmanship in a time of depression."

Landon at Chautauque, N. Y., tomorrow, Landon is expected to treat of education and religious tolerance. He will confer with state leaders of the party at Buffalo Tuesday, and the day will address a rally there on the subject of government finances.

The President's trip to the drought area, which he said will be non-political, will begin Tuesday. He will consult with the governors of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Wyoming, preliminary to a drought conference with still other governors in Des Moines on September 1. Landon is scheduled to attend the Iowa discussion.

Tuesday brings a primary in Minnesota.

Regular Colonial Army Created by Mussolini

ROME, Aug. 23.—(P)—Benito Mussolini created a permanent, regular colonial army today. There is no limit to recruits, it was announced. Involvement will open immediately and will close on September 1. Enlistment will be for a two-year initial period. The term may be renewed for any additional length of time desired.

Those who enlist immediately will be paid a premium of 500 lire (approximately $40). The new army will replace a division now being recalled to the motherland from Ethiopia.

MINNESOTA'S ROLE
IN F. D. R. ELECTION
IS NOW UNKNOWN

Death of Governor Olson Before His Party Indorsed President Leaves Final Outcome in Doubt.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Aug. 23.—(P) Minnesota's role in President Roosevelt's campaign for re-election became an unknown quantity tonight with the death of Governor Floyd B. Olson.

The stand for the farmer-labor party which Olson led to political dominance in the state for six years was unannounced as the Governor's body was prepared for movement to St. Paul to lie in state in the capitol rotunda.

Before he died of stomach cancer last night at the Mayo clinic, the executive pledged his personal support to the New Deal. In 1932, he was instrumental in carrying the state for a democratic president for the first time in Minnesota history.

Although there were indications the farmer-laborites would follow their dead chief's wish, the situation was unsettled.

Olson was dead only a few hours before signs of battle appeared over the farmer-labor nomination he held for the United States senate seat now occupied by his appointee, Elmer A. Benson.

Francis H. Shoemaker, of Duluth, former congressman, announced his candidacy for the place in a statement in which he called Olson "the greatest governor in the United States."

ATLANTAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

George F. Meaders Dies as Car Runs Into Ditch South of Gainesville.

An Atlanta man was killed and three other persons were injured when the automobile in which they were riding careened into a ditch on the highway seven miles south of Gainesville at about 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

The dead man was George F. Meaders, 66, of 484 Vine street, N. W., a street car operator for the Georgia Power Company and an employee of that company for 30 years.

Meaders, his wife and their two sons, B. Robert Meaders and Ed E. Meaders, advertising clerk for the Atlanta Georgian-American, were driving to the Mossy Creek campground, 20 miles above Gainesville, when the accident occurred.

Meaders' skull was fractured and both legs were broken. Mrs. Meaders was seriously injured.

Knock Knock News at a Glance. Charles (Knockie) Crane was the object of a wide search yesterday by police, relatives and disappointed dollar seekers, but at a late hour last night had not been located. It is feared that being knock-knock editor of The Constitution went to his head and gave him a fracture of the skull.

In the meantime the mail addressed to the knock-knock editor continues common in and the added burden is giving the postmen knock-knock knees.

GOVERNOR'S RAGE
FORGES TO FRONT

Rivers and Anti-Rivers Battle Moving Rapidly Into Political Spotlight.

Georgia is locked in two of its bitterest struggles for two major offices, the senate and the governorship, as the candidates today enter the next to the last week of their campaigns with the race for governor, which started out as a Talmadge and anti-Talmadge fight, becoming a Rivers and anti-Rivers battle.

Both Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. and his opponent, Governor Talmadge, have busy weeks scheduled, and the furious scrapping for the governorship, together with its unexpected maneuverings, has by no means lessened its interest in the state.

I have heard from a great many counties which voted for Judge Fortson in the Macon meeting, but I want an expression from all such counties. I regard this as most important.

Rivers Defender Terms Jurist a 'Stalking Horse' for Governor Talmadge.

DOUGLAS, Ga., Aug. 23.—The people of south Georgia "bitterly resent" the attacks of Judge Blanton Fortson on the democracy of Speaker E. D. Rivers, of the house of representatives, John S. Gibson, of Douglas, solicitor general of the Waycross circuit, declared here today.

Solicitor General Gibson labels the charge that Rivers attempted to sell his weekly newspaper to the republican party and become a U. S. P. candidate for congress in 1932 "most absurd" and says it emanates from a "hopeless candidate." He added that "it is most unfortunate that Judge Fortson in his desperation should make such a charge, and that there is a widespread opinion in south Georgia that Fortson is a 'stalking horse' for Governor Talmadge."

The Gibson statement follows: "Since the recent charge made by Judge Fortson against E. D. Rivers to the effect that he tried to sell his paper out to the republicans, and also made an attempt to make the race for congress from the eighth district a republican ticket, I find a bitter resentment in the people in south Georgia."

"To we citizens in this section of the state," he said, "the Rivers and his unquestioned party loyalty, this charge is most absurd, even in a bitter campaign, and emanating from a hopeless candidate. These charges are a reflection on the character of the man, through this section of the state in the past, that Mr.

Moore Admits Confession Not Forced; "Ah Don't Know Why Ah Did It."

By JOHN A. FARRIS JR.

(Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.) CENTRAL PRISON, RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 23.—(UP)—Clutching a worn Bible in his black hand, Martin Moore shuffled up to the door of his cell on death row today and said he might as well tell he killed pretty, blond Helen Clevenger.

Just 12 hours before, a Bucombe county jury found the gangling negro guilty of the murder of the New York University honor student at Asheville 40 days ago.

Warden H. H. Honeycutt accompanied the United Press correspondent during the interview.

Until now, Moore, a former hall boy at the Battery Park hotel where the crime was committed, had said he confessed to the slaying because officers beat him.

"Ah might as well tell ah killed her," Moore told us as he hunched his six foot, three-inch body in the tiny cell just eight paces from the death house.

"Yeah, ah might as well tell that, 'cause they've got me and ah'm gonna die."

"Ah don't know why ah did it." "Ah went to the girl's room after ah'd gone to two or three others and they was all locked. Ah opened the door and here the girl was on the bed."

"She got up and asked me what ah wanted. She came toward me. Ah guess ah was scared, 'cause ah hit her and then shot her on the floor."

"Ah didn't know she was dead, mind not tell ah read it in the papers."

Moore told Willis he only went to the girl's room to rob it.

Had he ever thought about looking a rotter before, Willis asked him. "It was the first time ah ever thought about it," Moore answered. "No, sub, ah don't belong to no religion."

Minister Urges Universal Nudity; 'Ideal for Holidays, Week-Ends'

VALPARAISO, Ind., Aug. 23.—(UP)—Remove clothes from everyone to have a nudist colony. Dr. Ilse Boone, Baptist minister and editor of the official nudist magazine, said today as he sat, clad in an identification band, at the fifth international conference of nudists.

Brian-scratched and mosquito-bitten, the nudists closed their two-day conference with an "athletic session."

"Clothes are just an outmoded curiosity which promote unhealthy curiosity about human anatomy," Dr. Boone explained, as he tried to make himself comfortable on twigs and pebbles.

"Without clothes this morbid curiosity is exploited and a healthy interest takes its place."

"Nudism is changing the whole social relationship of men and women. It is the most profound social movement of the last 5,000 years."

"Of course no true believer expects nudism to be practiced in daily life."

SOVIET PLOTTERS
CRY REPENTANCE,
ARE ORDERED SHOT

'We Deserve Death,' Two Leaders Tell Hushed Court; Population Stirred by Dooming of 16.

MOSCOW, Aug. 24.—(P)—Sixteen Russians were today convicted of conspiring to overthrow Joseph Stalin and the soviet regime and were sentenced to death before firing squads.

Surrounded by bayonets the defendants stood as Chief Judge V. V. Urich read the 10-minute-long verdict.

Their only hope was Stalin and other high-ranking soviet leaders and great executive democracy.

All the prisoners confessed Wednesday to plotting a reign of terror to seize power and bring Leon Trotsky, former co-leader of Lenin, back from his Norway exile to direct the U. S. S. R.

Many of them—including the once-powerful Gregory Zinoviev and Leon Kamenef—earlier told the court they "deserved" death sentences.

Some of them, in their confessions, had even exceeded the prosecution's charges in what was considered an unprecedented series of self-accusations.

All the defendants are sentenced to the highest measure of social defense by shooting," the sentence read.

While the verdict was expected it created a deep stir among the population, for it was the first time that bolsheviks had ordered the execution of men who had once marched with the "comrades."

Zinoviev and Kamenef, both of whom bid for the soviet dictatorship after the death of Lenin in January, 1924, were found guilty of having ordered the collapse of the nationalistic acts on instructions from Trotsky.

The others were convicted of joining

158 RIDE TO DOOM
DURING WEEK-END

Auto Fatalities Almost Doubled in Week; Twice as Many Due to Rum.

By the Associated Press.

Automobile accidents took a toll of at least 158 lives throughout the nation over the week-end. This was almost double the number of fatalities over last week-end.

A Georgia farmer and two young sisters were burned to death when their car overturned in a ditch and caught fire a few minutes after he had bought the car.

Five persons were critically injured and one died when a car plunged 25 feet from one level of the Manhattan bridge in New York city, barely missing the 130-foot drop to the East river.

Among the developments in the field of accident prevention were the following:

Forty-nine persons who have driven an average of 529,000 miles each in the last 10 years without an accident or a traffic violation conviction, winners in a national safety contest, started in New York for a four-day conference.

The motor vehicle commissioner of Connecticut announced that during the first five months of 1936 there were two and one-half times as many accidents attributable to the influence of liquor as in the same period last year.

New York state police made special preparations to enforce a law effective September 1 making "criminal negligence in the operation of a vehicle" punishable by five years' imprisonment or a $5,000 fine or both.

Announcing a general increase in automobile fatalities under last year, New York city police said that deaths of pedestrians who ignored traffic lights were as numerous as ever.

Week-end automobile fatalities by states: Arkansas, 11; California, 11; Florida, 1; Georgia, 5; Illinois, 6; Kansas, 3; Kentucky, 1; Louisiana, 3; Massachusetts, 6; Michigan, 12; Minnesota, 3; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; Nebraska, 1; New Hampshire, 1; New Jersey, 2; New Mexico, 2; New York, 13; North Carolina, 4; North Dakota, 1; Ohio, 8; Oklahoma, 1; Oregon, 1; Pennsylvania, 21; South Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 8; Texas, 8; Utah, 1; Virginia, 3; West Virginia, 3; Wisconsin, 4.

The loyalist Asturian miners, masters of the use of dynamite, were reported by the rebels to have been roundly defeated in a new siege of Oviedo.

In the south, the insurgent leaders declared, the rebels threw back a violent government attack on Cordoba, with many loyalist dead.

'REDS' IN CONTROL
OF 600 INDUSTRIES

Seizures by Spanish Government Affect Every Branch of Production.

MADRID, Aug. 23.—Spain's government, it was disclosed today, has seized direct control of nearly 600 industries during the five bloody weeks of civil war.

Some of the industries have been taken over lock, stock and barrel.

Jose Benito, general secretary in charge of "government intervention in industries," declared:

"Only government intervention prevented the collapse of the national industrial system in the present emergency."

As a result, he asserted, not a single industry operating prior to the revolution has been closed, and many of those abandoned before the fighting started have been reopened.

The defenders of Spain's socialist government are convinced that American industry, in event of war, must produce the major part of the required munitions and that "assuming this premise, it follows that no far as practicable industry should be prepared for its war mission."

STEAMER PREVENTED FROM ENTERING INSURGENT PORT
AT MOROCCO 24 HOURS
AFTER RADICAL PROMISE OF 'HANDS OFF' NEUTRALITY.

By the Associated Press. Spain's bloody civil tempest broke its bounds again Sunday. Twenty-four hours after socialist Madrid had promised Great Britain to refrain from interfering with British shipping on the high seas, Gibraltar heard officially that loyal Spanish warships had prevented a little British freight and passenger steamer, the Gibel Zorjon, from entering the harbor at Melilla, Spanish Morocco.

That fortified port has been in rebel hands since the first shots were fired on the Iberian peninsula and the Moroccan coast five weeks ago.

Britain's retort was swift and powerful. The great battle cruiser Repulse, with gun crews standing by 15-inch guns, foamed toward the scene of the "interference," backed up by two destroyers.

Their officers had strict orders to keep Spanish hands off British shipping for the "duracion."

The Gibel Zorjon, it was understood, had been released for assistance. The incident served to accentuate the difficulties which Europe still faces in attempting to force an international neutrality pact until the Spanish civil war has run its course.

The German torpedo boat See Adler, carrying 100 refugees from Spain, was fired upon while passing San Sebastian, the London Daily Mail's Hendaye correspondent reported today. The alleged attack apparently occurred last Thursday and was only just revealed by refugees aboard.

While Madrid, although acting in good faith, might have been unable to communicate the "hands off" orders to her warships, there was speculation in some quarters as to whether the socialist-communist leaders of government actually could control the actions of their fighting units.

Several of the loyal Spanish warships have been reported manned by petty officers and common seamen.

Arms Nationalization Is Opposed by Army

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(P)—Major General William H. Tschappat, army chief of ordnance, declared in an article in the current issue of Army Ordnance that the War Department does not favor the nationalization of munitions manufacture.

General Tschappat said the War Department is convinced that American industry, in event of war, must produce the major part of the required munitions and that "assuming this premise, it follows that no far as practicable industry should be prepared for its war mission."

who overthrew their command because the officers desired to join the fascist rebels.

Fighting continued on northern, southern and eastern fronts, but there was no concrete proof of material success for either side.

Portuguese newspaper correspondents in Seville, source of much of the rebel propaganda, reported Madrid had been bombed yesterday and loyalist barracks damaged.

There was no confirmation of the report.

In Madrid, the government announced it had taken direct control of nearly 600 industries, notably those which turn out the sinews of war. In autonomous Catalonia last week, industry was collectivized along the soviet pattern by decree. The Catalan government is loyal to Madrid.

Nazi Press Aroused.

The incident in the Mediterranean was not the only bar to a Europe-wide "hands-off-Spain" pact. Nazi Germany, still enraged by the reported search of a German steamer by loyalist Spanish warships, continued to whip her press up to a campaign against Madrid and Moscow.

which she accuses of giving aid to the Spanish government leftists.

The French popular front press, sympathetic to Madrid's cause, assailed the German activity in turn as "arrogant and menacing."

Fascist Italy, having accepted French neutrality proposals with reservations, watched and waited for what France and Germany would say or do.

"FIRE" ORDER GIVEN
BRITISH WARSHIPS
GIBRALTAR, Aug. 23.—(UP)—

Under orders to fire if obstructed, four British destroyers and the battle cruiser Repulse steamed from Gibraltar under forced draft tonight to the aid of a British steamer challenged by a loyalist Spanish man-of-war off Melilla, Spanish Morocco. The British warships put to sea to enforce England's warning that British guns were ready to guarantee freedom of the seas after the Spanish vessel prevented the British steamer Gibel Zorion from entering Melilla harbor with a cargo of gasoline. The Repulse and accompanying destroyers were ready to escort the vessel into Melilla if necessary and to fire if prevented. Melilla is in the hands of Spanish rebels, who have a large air base there.

The commander of the Spanish loyalist cruiser Miguel de Cervantes, who is in charge of the Gibraltar straits patrol, apologized to admiralty representatives for the action of one of his vessels in halting the British ship. He said the Gibel Zorion had been allowed to proceed. It was expected, nevertheless, that the British men-of-war would see to it that she does proceed.

Apologies were obtained after the British destroyer Cordington met the Miguel de Cervantes at sea. The British skipper boarded the Spanish cruiser and protested against interference with a British ship outside Spanish territorial waters. Although the Gibel Zorion was carrying gasoline, regarded as war material, it was pointed out that since no Spanish blockade of the Spanish coast is recognized Spanish warships cannot halt vessels on the open sea.

The commander of the Spanish cruiser informed the master of the Gibel Zorion he could proceed as he saw fit.

The Repulse arrived at the scene of the parley at sea shortly after the captain of the Cordington obtained the Spanish apology.

The first form, he declared, applied only to those industries which might be classified as allied with the manufacturer.

'REDS' SEIZE CONTROL OF SPANISH INDUSTRY

positions on Lodo Hill lasted 24 hours and ended in a government victory, the reports said.

The fascist insurgents also claimed victory over a government force of Catalonians which attacked the town of Jaca. In the Pyrenees, 32 miles north of Huesca, and said they had regime, Benito said, have intervened in every phase of Spanish industry, from mining and the operation of banks and railroads to production and distribution of food supplies.

Madrid Industrialized.
Madrid itself, he contended, forms one of the most remarkable features of the new system aimed at governmental control of all industry.

Previous to the revolt, Benito declared, the capital had little or no industrial production, but within 10 days after the first shots were fired, it became the most important industrial center in the country, with the exception of Barcelona.

Industries here have been reorganized for the production of war materials in sufficient quantities to supply all armed forces operating in the Madrid area, the secretary asserted.

Aerial bombs, weighing as much as 165 pounds, are being manufactured in Madrid on a "large scale." Similarly, factories are turning out artillery shells, rifle cartridges, and uniforms.

An average of four combat planes a day are being manufactured at the Gatafe works, near Madrid.

Two Forms.
Benito said the government intervention in industry has taken two forms.

Either the industry is staffed with a government-selected personnel throughout, or a government delegate with full administrative powers is placed in active charge.

The first form, he declared, applied only to those industries which might be classified as allied with the manufacturer.

factory of war materials or support of the fighting forces.

Production of all these units has been stepped up to a pace never before achieved in Spain.

Control Raw Materials.
The government, said Benito, was "particularly fortunate" in that all the great surface raw materials were in its possession.

Among these, he declared, were the Rio Tinto mines in Huelva province, the great coal basin of the Asturias, and mines at Linares, Puerto Llano and Viqueira.

At present there is on hand, he went on, a sufficient supply of lead, copper, iron, zinc and coal to feed the war industries for a year at least.

Spanish finance, Benito contended, has thrown its full support to the government. On the other hand, he declared, the rebels have had to strip their bank deposits in their territory.

He said the government had not been forced to this extreme.

The banks have arranged credit facilities enabling government-controlled industries to continue operation without resort to "actual looting," the secretary stated.

Man Asks Ten Days To Evade Drink Offers
The man's expression bespoke consummate despair as he approached the information counter at police headquarters yesterday afternoon.

"What can we do for you?" asked Officer J. E. (Ray O'Sunshine) Ivie, the clerk on duty, in his best dealing-with-the-public manner.

"I'm drunk and I wanna be locked up," said the visitor.

"Oh, you're not that drunk—go home and get some sleep and you'll feel better tomorrow maybe," suggested the clerk hopefully.

The visitor, however, was not to be denied. "That's just the trouble," he insisted, "wherever I go and whatever I do there's always some fellow offering me a drink. I want to get away from it all—at least for 10 days."

Whereupon Officer Ivie gave in and the coast guard was co-operating in the drive. It was said the slaying of two enforcement officers during the past year had directed attention to the west Florida area.

Some of the prisoners were listed as Tom Muldoon, Mrs. Flossie Muldoon and Lizkie Kowski. These three were arranged before United States Commissioner J. Montrose Edrill, who placed their bonds at $1,000 for the man, $500 for his wife and $200 for the girl.

Agents said Muldoon bit one of the raiders, Mrs. Muldoon tried to drive them out and the girl joined in a battle for possession of rebel sinner a 50-gallon still and 11 gallons of whiskey were seized in the raid, which took place near Pensacola.

Other prisoners were reported lodged in county jails between Pensacola and Tallahassee.

State Department Works Overtime Aiding Americans in War Zones

By STANLEY P. RICHARDSON,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—

In an inconspicuous section of the State Department, lights burn night into the early morning hours while occupants work overtime to aid Americans caught in the Spanish revolution and comfort their anxious relatives in the United States.

It is the division of foreign service administration which, in times of emergency abroad, is the government's chief fact-finding agency for keeping tabs on the whereabouts, movements and welfare of American nationals in trouble zones.

"Every time anything happens," said tall, lean, white-haired Herbert Hengstler, chief of the division and Good Samaritan to unnumbered thousands of Americans, "we really have to go to work."

The World War, the Russian revolution, the Smyrna fire, the Tokyo earthquake and the Italo-Ethiopian war are just a few of the events in other parts of the world that have taxed the division's facilities to the utmost.

Locating and keeping up with more than 1,500 Americans who were in Spain when the revolution broke out, compiling evacuation lists and not infrequently acting as banker for destitute refugees—all in addition to regular official work—has kept a special staff on almost constant duty in the division since July 20.

Deluged With Inquiries.
Bearing this emergency burden is the division's section on welfare and relief, headed by Mrs. Madge M. Blessing, a native of New London, Conn., which operates directly under the supervision of Hengstler.

In normal times, the welfare section handles an average of half a dozen "cases" daily. Most of these are relatives of Americans who have lost touch with American acquaintances abroad and asked the State Department's help in locating them.

But during the past month, however, desks have been deluged day and night with scores of inquiries from frantic relatives and friends in this country concerning persons in many parts of Spain.

By telephone, letter and telegraph these messages come and each one starts energetic efforts by Hengstler's staff. Often, it is necessary to cable to the nearest consul, or to all American diplomatic and consular agents in Spain, to get the information.

The division encounters its greatest difficulties in such work by the failure of inquirers to give specific information concerning persons they seek. Many say only that the missing are "somewhere in Spain."

If the person sought has neglected to register with American consulates in his travels, it is only by chance that the division is able to find them.

Has Good Average.
"If we are able to find 80 per cent of the people we are asked about we think we are doing pretty well," said Hengstler. "But our average has been almost 100 per cent so far in the Spanish crisis."

As he spoke he thumbed through a foot high stack of messages and consular reports heaped on the top of his desk.

From consuls' lists of Americans known to be in Spain, Mrs. Blessing and her staff compile individual card indexes on which are recovered the reported movements of each person. When at last they are evacuated safely from the country, this fact is entered with a collective sigh of relief.

Locating stray Americans is just one part of the job. The division also arranges to transfer money to those in need of it through the various consuls and thus far has handled thousands of dollars which relatives here would have been unable otherwise to transmit to Spain.

Polo Ponies Safe.
Occasionally it is called upon to act as a glorified messenger boy, but its frowns on such activity when it does not concern the safety of Americans.

While Hengstler was explaining the emergency functions of his department, a private message was delivered to him from Barcelona requesting that the State Department inform an unidentified man in the United States that his two polo ponies were being well cared for at the Barcelona Polo Club but that funds were needed for their oats and other upkeep.

Hengstler, who hails from Middletown, Ohio, is a veteran of 38 years in the State Department. He directed the evacuation of 300,000 Americans from Europe when the World War broke out—a task which required more than six months.

His present job, although not so big, keeps him at his desk more than 12 hours a day.

Mrs. Blessing directs shifts of 10 clerks and stenographers through the day and well into the night.

was reported shelled by a rebel cruiser.

Loyalist advances reaching the French frontier said government Tarragonian forces had occupied Belchite, on the road to Zaragoza, 22 miles southeast of that rebel-held eastern city. A battle for possession of rebel repulsed a new government offensive on the Avila front, 50 miles west of Madrid.

Bishop Reported Killed.
Rebel circles heard reports that Monsignor Viday y Barraquer, archbishop of Tarragona, on Spain's east coast, had been killed by the government's socialist-communist militiamen. (The Vatican City newspaper Osservatore Romano said five Spanish Catholic bishops had been killed to date.)

A rebel column, sent hurriedly to the defense of Cordoba, met government forces 10 miles from the outskirts of the city and routed them, the insurgents reported.

They said a superior air force was a decisive factor in the rebel victory. The loyalists were declared to have left many on the field.

From Seville, rebel southern headquarters, the rebels announced they had captured the northern watering place of Zarauz, cutting loyalist communications between Bilbao and San Sebastian.

Bombs Dropped on Irun.
Two rebel planes dropped a dozen bombs on Irun during the morning. Four fell near the railroad station, one damaging a machine shop. The others hit government barricades, but did no damage.

The planes then dropped a dozen more bombs on nearby government positions.

A new bombardment of San Sebastian by the rebel cruiser Canarias was reported.

Rumors the loyalists in the San Sebastian-Irun sector had made peace overtures persisted, but they appeared to be continuing their defense operations.

Advices from Lisbon, Portugal, quoted the Marquis Quintanar, prominent Spanish grandee representing the rebel Spanish junta, as declaring the northern government forces at San Sebastian, Irun and Santander had made peace proposals.

Miners Plan New Attack.
(Advices from Hendaye, France, said 20,000 Asturian miners, unexcelled in the use of dynamite, had begun a new attempt to force the rebels from their northern stronghold of Oviedo. The miners, heartened by the capture of rebel barracks at Simancas, outside Gijon, were declared to be pressing an attack on Naranja Hill, where Oviedo troops of General Emilio Mola, northern rebel leader, were entrenched.

(There was no new word from Toledo, 40 miles from Madrid, where rebels were reported fighting desperately to reach the side of insurgents besieged for many days in the city's famous Alcazar and to clear the way to the capital.)

ITALO-NAZI DEAL ON SPAIN SEEN
BERLIN, Aug. 23.—(AP)—High-pressure diplomatic, naval and economic activities tonight kept the German reich feverishly busy with affairs of state.

These four developments awaited full interpretation:

Chancellor Adolf Hitler, at his Berchtesgaden mountain home, conferred with Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary.

He awaited the coming of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, of Austria.

Hjalmar Schacht, president of the reichsbank and minister of economics, packed his grips for a trip to Paris.

Admiral Horthy was closeted with Hitler for a full two hours, a fact which attracted marked attention in diplomatic quarters.

Chancellor Schuschnigg will soon confer with Hitler in the Tyrol, on the German-Austrian frontier.

Closer linking of the Danubian states with Germany was seen in diplomatic quarters as one possible result of the meetings.

Further credence was given this version when it was learned King Boris III of Bulgaria, who met with Hitler several days ago after attending the Olympic games, will proceed to Italy for a visit. The theory was advanced that Boris will attempt to persuade Italy to disinterest herself more and more in Danubian countries and let Germany penetrate these states economically in return for Germany's acquiescence to Mussolini's reported desire to acquire Spain's Balearic islands and possibly other Spanish territory.

CHANGE TO BE ASKED IN PAYMENT OF TAXES

Georgia Officials Want Power to Enforce Collection of Fi Fas.

MACON, Ga., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Resolutions intended to clear up problems existing at present in Georgia tax receiving and collection methods were adopted at the final session of the state collectors' and receivers' meeting here today.

The resolutions, drawn up as the result of discussions Saturday night, will be presented to the state legislature next year for enactment into law.

The association asked that taxpayers be allowed to pay their taxes in three equal installments during the year, rather than in one lump sum at the end of the year.

No date was set by the tax officials, who pointed out that the installment plan of payment would bring a decrease in delinquent payments.

A resolution was adopted asking that tax collectors be responsible for the collection of taxes, be allowed to enforce collection of fi fas, issued against delinquent taxpayers. At present, it was stated, the power is vested in the county sheriff.

The group asked that the state appropriate funds to carry all receivers and collectors to Atlanta for annual conferences on collecting and receiving methods.

Members also approved a resolution asking that the state mail all tax rulings to all state officials as soon as new rulings are made. It was pointed out that this would prevent the use of more than one ruling on any one point by various counties of the state.

Ed Meaders said the automobile got out of control and went into the ditch just as another machine passed.

Ouija Believe This One? Refrigerator Catches Fire

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—No cases of men biting dogs were reported here today, but the fire department was called to extinguish a blaze in a refrigerator.

Balked by fumes from a burning electric refrigerator in the apartment of J. A. McClelland, the firemen sent a rescue squad which carried the machine to the roof of the building, where the flames were put out.

Damage was slight, except to the ice cubes.

WILLIAM A. TAPPAN, WAR VETERAN, DIES

William A. Tappan, 40, former resident of Atlanta and a veteran of the World War, died Saturday in San Francisco. Recently he had been attached to the veterans' bureau in Reno, Nevada.

Education in Georgia schools, Mr. Tappan served with the sixth division during the war and saw service in the Argonne and at St. Mihiel.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. J. P. Blanton, of Atlanta, and five brothers, E. G. Tappan, Atlanta; James E. Tappan, Macon; and Paul, John C. and Marvin Tappan.

The body will be brought to Atlanta for funeral services and burial here under the direction of Sam R. Greenberg.

ROOSEVELT, LONDON FACE BUSIEST WEEK

Mississippi and Wednesday one in South Carolina. Senators Pat Harrison and James Byrnes, of those states, who have been among the New Deal leaders in congress, both have opposition for renomination. California makes nominations to the national house and the state legislature on Wednesday.

Delaware republicans will make their senatorial nomination in convention on Thursday. There has been talk of drafting Senator Daniel O. Hastings to stand for another term despite his announcement that he would not run.

Colonel Knox will resume his campaign at Hampton Beach, N. H., Friday and will touch several nearby shores in succeeding days, before appearing in Portland, Maine, September 4. The state elections take place there September 14.

Included in the statements today was one by Major George L. Berry, of labor's Non-Partisan League, saying the League's chairman for New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Michigan and Ohio had reported their states "safely Roosevelt" and "organized labor and liberal voters" united.

Liberty League Attack.
The American Liberty League made public what it called "an analysis of the continued growth of federal bureaucracy under the New Deal—in critical disregard of the promises of the 1932 democratic platform."

"So long as the New Deal pattern of government prevails," the statement said, "there appears to be no possibility of a return to the normal pre-depression administrative structure of government."

The republican national committee, in another statement, said that "New Deal relief workers in Ohio have used federal relief funds for their personal gain."

The committee said that information reaching its headquarters alleged that "in the period between July 1, 1935, and July 1, 1936, while Works Progress Administration workers were laboring at pittance wages to keep them from starving, high ranking WPA administrative officials raided the federal treasury and voted themselves three general increases in salary ranging from $150 to $210 a month."

3 POLIO DEATHS REPORTED.
BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Two infantile paralysis deaths in the state were reported yesterday. Death of a 5-year-old child in Allen county several days ago as the result of the disease was disclosed by the county health officer.

MISSISSIPPI TO VOTE FOR SENATOR TUESDAY

Veteran Pat Harrison Faces Combined Opposition; Heated Campaign Ends.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Pat Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee and one of President Roosevelt's closest advisors, faces the political fight of his life at the polls Tuesday.

The veteran Mississippi lawmaker, seeking a fourth term, must overcome the combined forces of former Governor Sennett Conner, his opponent, and junior Senator Theodore G. Bilbo to continue as an important New Deal cog in congress.

The campaign, one of Mississippi's bitterest, and bitter political fights in this state are the rule rather than the exception, closes tomorrow night with Harrison, Conner and Bilbo firing last-minute broadsides from widely separated sections.

Senator Harrison winds up on the golf coast, topping off eight appearances with a speech in his home town of Gulfport.

Conner closes in the capital, where his Jackson supporters have gathered for a central Mississippi rally, and Bilbo will make his final appeal at Hazlehurst.

The trio took to the stump several weeks ago Mississippi's atmosphere has been charged with explosive oratory, much to the enjoyment of the state's electorate which turned out in droves to hear the candidates lambast each other.

Lacking a major issue upon which to swing the campaign, the speakers turned to personalities and Mississippi's rigid corrupt practices at fault to curb the viciousness with which they attacked each other.

ROLE OF MINNESOTA IN ELECTION UNKNOWN

Benson, who now is a candidate for governor.

In event of the latter choice, it was said, Benson's name on the gubernatorial ballot would be replaced by that of Hjalmar Peterson, lieutenant governor under Olson and now governor of Minnesota.

Although he had been ill for months, Olson had expected to make the senate race himself. He was in the prime of life—44 years old—and fought cancer with the same fortitude with which he waged his political battles.

He went to the clinic for treatment some time ago, and left much improved. An intestinal perforation developed while he was at the Gull Lake summer home, however, and he was rushed back by airplane for an operation.

"Has Got Us Licked."
A few days before he died he told Maurice Rose, his chauffeur and personal aid:

"I think and believe I'm going to beat this thing."

Not until just before he lapsed into the final coma an hour before his death, did he admit he was dying.

"This has got us licked," he said at the last. "But don't worry or feel bad, because it must be for the best."

Death brought messages of admiration for the chief executive, recognized as a master of oratory and political leadership. Republicans with whom he battled throughout his political life joined democrats, whose national administration Olson had endorsed five days before his death, in praising his ability and personality.

President Roosevelt, who was to have visited Olson Wednesday, sent his condolences to Mrs. Olson. Former President Herbert Hoover's one-time secretary, Walter Newton, praised his "outstanding ability and fighting leadership."

Elected Governor 1930.
The Governor had been active in politics since 1919, when he was appointed Hennepin county attorney to fill a vacancy. In 1924 he ran for governor against Theodore Christianson, and was overwhelmingly elected. He came back in 1930 to win that office, which he held until his death.

A state funeral was set for Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Minneapolis auditorium. The body will lie in state in the state capital from Monday noon until Wednesday.

Burial will be in Lakewood cemetery, Minneapolis.

Olson's successor as governor, Hjalmar Peterson, 46, Askov newspaper publisher, is an advocate of public ownership, co-operatives and personal initiative, the main plank in the late Governor's personal platform.

Olson's successor as senatorial nominee will take part in a three-cornered battle in the fall. Representative Theodore Christianson is the republican nominee and Patrick J. Delaney the democratic choice.

Couple Are Remarried After 47 Years Apart

LIVINGSTON, Tenn., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Time has failed to dull the edge of an elderly couple's love for each other.

Miss Pernell E. Burgess, 17, of near Livingston, and William A. Abbott, 22, of Wayne county, Kentucky, were married in the spring of 1881.

Eight years they lived together and became the parents of three children. Then came marital differences and divorce.

Abbott returned to his native Kentucky and Mrs. Abbott remained in this community.

Both married a second time. But since their respective mates have died.

The Rev. John M. Brown, of near Allons, recently remarried them with the bride's age 72, and the groom's 77.

CULLINAN PASSES

Famous Pound and Half Diamond Named for Him.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Sir Thomas Cullinan, founder and chairman of the company controlling the pit where the famous Cullinan diamond was found, died today.

He was a member of the first Transvaal parliament and later of the first parliament of the Union of South Africa.

The Cullinan diamond, discovered in 1905, was more than three times the size of any previously known diamond. It weighed 3,025 3-4 carats, or more than 1 1-2 pounds.

The diamond was bought by Transvaal in 1907 and presented to King Edward VII of Great Britain. It was cut into nine large stones and a number of small brilliants at Amsterdam in 1908.

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Colonel and Mrs. Peter Oliphant Knight will observe their fiftieth wedding anniversary here tomorrow.

Colonel Knight is often referred to as one of Florida's outstanding citizens and attorneys.

He and the former Miss Lillie Frierson, of Atlanta, were married in Atlanta on August 24, 1886. Soon after Colonel Knight came to Florida from his native Pennsylvania. He was admitted to the Florida bar in 1886, and took up his residence in Fort Myers, where he was mayor of the town at 22 years of age.

The Knights moved to Tampa in 1889 and have lived here since. They have the parents of two sons, Joe Knight, citrus grower of Elfers, Fla., and Peter O. Knight Jr., an attorney in his father's office here.

ART DAVIS, RACE PILOT, UNHURT IN AIR CRASH

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The "Delgado Mail" New Orleans speed plane which was entered in the forthcoming national air races at Cleveland, crashed one mile south of Shushan airport today. Pilot Art Davis bailed out and landed safely.

First reports said the plane caught fire in mid-air. Pilot Davis left it with his parachute as the ship began its earthward plunge. It buried itself in a dense thicket.

Davis had taken the plane up for a test flight in preparation for the Cleveland races.

It was entered in the national speed contests last year, but developed motor trouble and was withdrawn.

The plane built by students at Delgado Trades school, a vocational training institution. It had been rebuilt in preparation for this year's races.

90-DEGREE WEATHER FORECAST FOR TODAY

Another day of 90-degree weather is in store for Atlanta today under partly cloudy skies, it was forecast last night by meteorologists at the Candler field station of the United States Weather Bureau.

The mercury, after a scheduled start of 79 degrees this morning, is expected to mount to a maximum of 90 degrees by afternoon. Thunderstorms are expected in widely scattered areas of the southeast. Yesterday's temperature range was between 74 and 90 degrees. A light shower fell in the city yesterday afternoon.

TOWNSENDITES READY TO TEST STRENGTH

Pension Plan Supporters Urge Election of 20 Home State Candidates.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Townsend pension organization made ready tonight for a preliminary strength test in its home state by urging members to vote for 20 selected candidates in next Tuesday's congressional primary.

The political fortunes of at least one high Townsendite official, Sheridan Downey, were at stake.

Downey, now attorney for Dr. F. E. Townsend, pension plan founder, sought to defeat Representative Frank H. Buck for the third district democratic nomination. Buck has been singled out by the Townsendites as particularly hostile to their plan.

Representative John Steven McGowan, who introduced the original Townsend pension bill in congress but who broke later with Townsend, was seeking democratic renomination in the 11th district. Among the republican candidates was A. I. Stewart, Townsendite choice.

State Manager E. J. Marget, whose name figured sensationally in the congressional Townsend inquiry, predicted 13 of the 20 indorsees would be nominated—seven out of ten in northern California and six out of the southern California districts. He declined to mention names.

KNOCK-KNOCK EDITOR IS OBJECT OF SEARCH

and that at times there is a low moaning sound which resembles a ghost whispering: "Whoos there?"

Winners Just Ahead.
Now to get down to the business at hand:
The judges agree with Frances Burghard, of 341 Hardeman avenue, Macon, that offie day in every way this gets sillier and sillier and so Frances is No. 1 winner today.

Fearing that Charles Crane may have been executed by the angry mob, one of the judges hesitated and so therefore, the second award goes to Miss Elsie Hetzel, of 578 North Highland avenue, N. E., who submitted:

Knock-knock.
Who's there?
Execute.
Execute who?
Execute contest you have.
And because all the judges agreed with Marvin Martin, of 1082 Columbia avenue, N. E., he gets the third knock-knock.

Marvin wrote:
Who's there?
Garter.
Garter who?
You garter pull a snappy one to win the five-bucks prize.
The five bucks, you know, will be the grand award and will be given to the knock-knock writer sending in the best (or maybe we should say, the worst) entry of the week.

Others Knocking Along.
And now for a few more knock-knocks which were barely nosed out by the winners, but which were pretty good at that.

Forrest who?
Knock knock all you want to as forrest we care.
(Charley, help, I'm sinking. Come in, come in, wherever you are.)
Dorothy Bush, of 106 McDonald street, Marietta, suggests the wherefore of knock-knock's popularity.

Says she: It's Jesse-odd southern custom.
J. P. Warren Jr., of 648 Cumberland circle, gives the assistant knock-knock editor a swell idea. Junior says: Annie port in a storm.

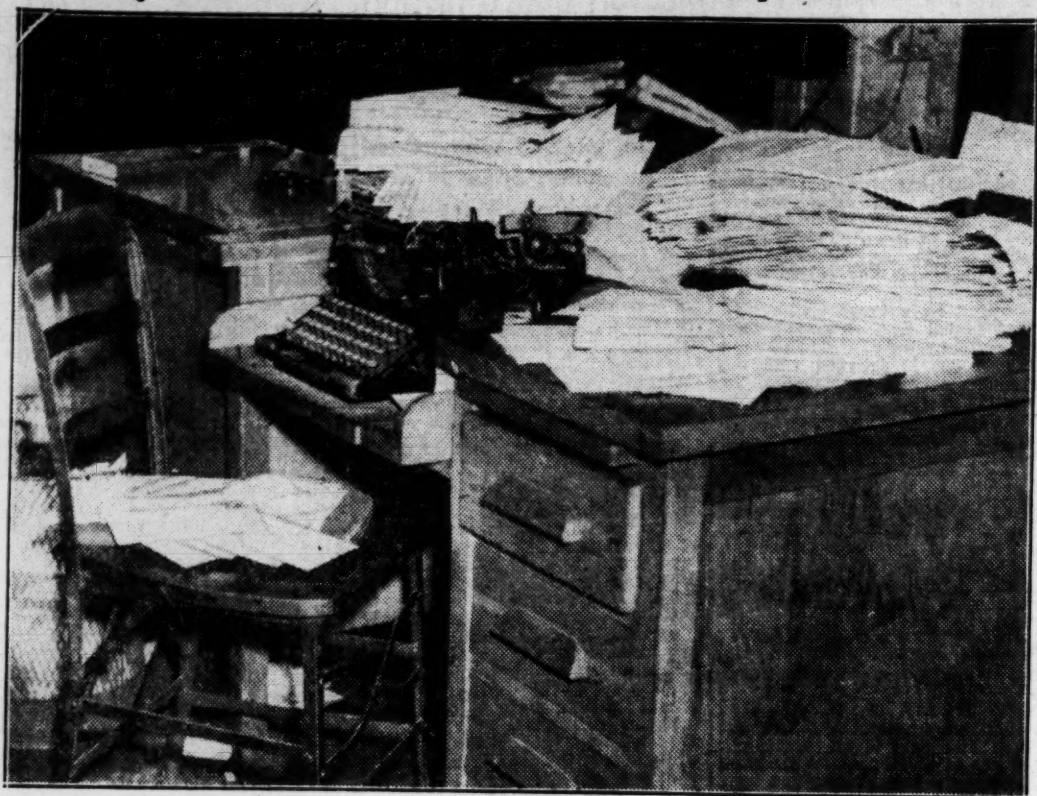

And Florence Foster, of 1441 North Morningside drive, N. E., suggests that the reason for knock knock's popularity is "Clara's a crystal."
Now, before signing off for the evening 24-hour period, we furnish the rules for any other addicts who think they can tickle a dollar out of the judges. Three prizes of a dollar each are awarded each day to the three knock-knocks which the judges think are the best submitted. Their decisions are final and may knock be appealed. A grand prize of $5 will be awarded the best knock-knock of the week.

In the event of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.
And tomorrow Charley, we hope, may be apprehended and returned to serve out his time reading and writing about more knock-knocks.
(Umquat may, I'll doubtless be for the worst.

Late John Gilbert's Earthly Goods To Be Sold at Hollywood Auction

By REILMAN MORIN.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A wealth of movie history goes on the auction block tomorrow.

All the earthly goods of the late John Gilbert will be sold—the furnishings of his home and his studio dressing rooms, his guns, his tennis racquets, his phonograph record, even the shoes and socks and underwear which were in his home six months ago when he died.

Marlene Dietrich, auctioneer Ben Bail said, wants, his fountain pen, and ash tray that stood beside his bed, the pillows and some of his linen.

Scores of persons have spoken for one or all three of the masculine wedding rings he kept, long after he was divorced from the women who gave them to him.

His daughter, Leatrice Joy Gilbert, child of his marriage to the former actress, Leatrice Joy, has asked for his make-up box, some of his books and his chess sets.

The auctioneer said he expects a spirited battle between Virginia Bruce, fourth wife of the actor; Arthur Hornblow, studio executive, and several other people, for a bronze statuette that Gilbert prized.

"It was modeled by Cedric Gibbons," Bail said.
Gibbons, a studio art director and the husband of Dolores Del Rio, himself has put in a bid for a Chinese stone cat and the grand piano, Bail said. Colleen Moore wants a set of marine paintings, and George K. Arthur has expressed a preference for a collection of several thousand phonograph records.

The members of an angling club have placed a collective bid for Gilbert's huge fishing equipment.

Bail said he expected spirited bidding over Gilbert's gigantic bed, which measures more than eight feet in width.

The whole list of articles numbers more than 3,000 and was valued at $50,000 in 1931, the auctioneer said.

church. Ah did go some though," Moore said he was glad he was to be executed by gas instead of electricity, if he had to die.

"Ah read in the papers that the gas kind of chokes you but makes you go off to sleep," Moore said. "Ah don't believe it will hurt so much. Ah don't want to be electrocuted. They say you just breathe the gas and that's all."

Doesn't Hear Truth.
"Is that right, mister?" the negro asked.

His eyes softened up a bit and he swallowed hard as he asked the question. And he looked beyond us toward the heavy door that hides the state's death house where gray clouds of gas float up from the floor to kill the condemned.

"That's right, Martin," we told him. We didn't tell him that it is a long death, that men squirm in the chair, choke themselves when the plumes of gas sear their throat and burn their eyes and nostrils, that their legs work up and down like pistons.

Tearfully, he said: "I shall never say one word in my defense. My guilt is unlimited. I want to tell my 4-year-old daughter not to follow in my footsteps, but to live for the welfare of her great fatherland."

The highlight of the day, however, came when two distinguished old Bolsheviks, Gregory Zinovieff and Leon Kamenef, unhesitatingly confessed they had conspired with fascists to overthrow the soviet regime with a reign of terror, staking their hopes for success on the hope of throwing the soviet union into war.

Their amazing attitude was summed up by Kamenef, Trotsky's own brother-in-law, when he declared: "We Deserve Death."

"The death sentence for myself and all of us sitting here is fully justified and we have more than deserved it."

"To be confined to prison, to look at soviet progress through bars, is worse than instant death."

"I prefer the latter," he said.
Of Trotsky he cried:
"Trotsky is leading the enemy, working for war against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics."

"After my death and that of Zinovieff, Trotsky will remain the only person to organize, guide and supervise terroristic activities."

"The sooner his hand is checked, the better."

Retiring under guard, Kamenef's magnificent pose deserted him. His step was faltering and his head cast down as he left the courtroom.

Zinovieff, while apparently the most shaken of the two men, did not break down.

"Before you," he told the hushed court, "stands a former enemy and trader, a most dangerous, violent foe. I want my example to serve as a lesson to all who continue to teach Trotskyism."

"Let them know I died repentant."

Damned by History.
"My name will not enter history by the side of the names it might once have been linked with. It will go down in history together with the name of Trotsky."

"But I hope it will be said somewhere that Zinovieff at the last minute repented and died, a former but not a present enemy."

The repentance of both men, held back throughout the ordeal of the trial, came gushing out with such fluency and abject sincerity as to be painfully embarrassing.

the venture and plotting the death of Serge Kiroff, chief assistant to Stalin, who was assassinated at Leningrad late in 1934, or of bringing in instructions from Trotsky or attempting to carry them out by killing Stalin and others.

The sentences of execution can be carried out any time within 72 hours after conviction. The only appeal is to the presidium of the central executive committee of the communist party.

Newspaper Queues.
Hours before the verdict was announced by the presiding judge, the streets of Moscow presented amazing evidence of the public interest in the case.

Queues of persons extending for blocks formed at every newspaper stand, awaiting the latest word from the courtroom. Hundreds gathered at every radio to hear the news broadcast.

Zinovieff and Kamenef, in stirring, hour-long orations told the court at its last session that they were ready and willing to die. They had confessed they were two of the master plotters.

The judges had adjourned court for five hours to allow preparation of the verdict in Ulrich's own longhand, a requirement of the law.

Fritz David, a defendant who admitted he tried unsuccessfully to shoot Joseph Stalin at the last communist congress, was the last prisoner to stand before the court and pronounce his tacit obituary.

No Defense.
Tearfully, he said: "I shall never say one word in my defense. My guilt is unlimited. I want to tell my 4-year-old daughter not to follow in my footsteps, but to live for the welfare of her great fatherland."

The highlight of the day, however, came when two distinguished old Bolsheviks, Gregory Zinovieff and Leon Kamenef, unhesitatingly confessed they had conspired with fascists to overthrow the soviet regime with a reign of terror, staking their hopes for success on the hope of throwing the soviet union into war.

Andrey Vishinsky, the soviet prosecutor, kept his head in a newspaper. The sombre judges stared into space.

ROOSEVELT ASSAILED
BY REV. GERALD SMITH
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 23.—(AP) The blazing sun drove Dr. Francis E. Townsend from the speaker's platform at an Ohio rally today, at which 5,000 to 6,000 persons heard the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith assert that the Roosevelt administration planned to embroil the United States in a world war in support of Russia.

Dr. Townsend, who said he had not yet recovered fully from an illness which prostrated him in Chicago, abandoned the speaker's platform at the state fairgrounds to speak briefly in the shade of a huge screen used during the night program.

Smith, self-styled heir to leadership in the late Senator Huey Long's "shares the wealth" movement, declared political issues in the United States had changed in the last three years through first, economic panic; second, patriotic panic; and third, world conflict between communism and private ownership.

Bloc's Three Officers Resign,
Ask Indefinite Leave;
Others Follow.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A possibility the entire left wing of the Mexican senate—consistent supporter of President Lazaro Cardenas—would vacate its seats in congress emerged today in the wake of the "irrevocable" resignation of the bloc's three officers.

Senators Ernesto Soto Reyes, of Michoacan, Candido Aguilar, of Vera Cruz, and Pedro Torres Ortiz, of Colima—president, vice president and secretary, respectively, of the left wing—resigned those offices at a secret meeting of the group yesterday.

At the same time they asked "indefinite leave of absence" from the senate, citing as their reason the "political agitation" caused by the left wing's refusal this week to seat six candidates of the national revolutionary (government) party whom the party had declared election victors.

Denial of seats to the party's candidates led Thursday to the resignation of Emilio Portes Gil as president of the party, and predictions two members of the cabinet, if not more, would be forced to resign.

Fourteen of the 45 senate left wingers—there are 52 senators—were reported preparing also to ask for leave of absence, in "solidarity" with the bloc's officers, and it was held not unlikely the rest would follow suit.

Congress is scheduled to reconvene September 1, when President Cardenas will deliver his annual message.

Political observers said they believed the senate developments brought closer a showdown between conservatives and radicals in President Cardenas' cabinet.

There were rumors the left wingers believed the President still sympathetic with Portes Gil and the conservative administration faction he supposedly headed, and were seeking to force the chief executive to show his hand.

If they won, it was said, Secretary of Agriculture Saturnino Cedillo and Secretary of the Treasury Eduardo Suarez, if not others, would have to hand over their portfolios.

LEGIONNAIRES URGE STRONG WAR DEFENSE

DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Colonel Howard P. Savage, of Chicago, former national commander of the American Legion, said in an address prepared for delivery today that "the American Legion stands for an adequate national defense for peace, not for war."

"It knows that our government will not seek a war," he said at the annual convention of the Illinois department of the Legion. "But, it knows, too, that the gravest danger to peace is a weak defense. For that reason we ask for a defense which will insure us against invasion and the horrors of another war."

CONGRESS TO BE ASKED TO SETTLE TIME ISSUE

I. C. C. Cites 'Complete Lack of Uniformity' in Fixing Standards.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Interstate Commerce Commission officials indicated today they would ask congress to solve the vexing question—who is to have authority to fix time standards?

mission redefined the eastern standard time zone to include the lower peninsula of Michigan but denied a request for eastern time by the city of Chicago.

The order called attention to "the complete lack of uniformity" which was said to result from fixation of varying time standards by individual states and communities, without regard for federally designated zones.

Although they must be observed by the railroads and government offices, the federal time standards are not mandatory upon states and communities.

Involved in the problem to some extent was the application of time zones to law and legal instruments. At the commission there was the general assumption that federally established time zones applied to instances where federal laws were concerned.

I. C. C. officials, however, said that the practice was to leave the decision to the courts, although there had been comparatively few such decisions in the past.

The commission at one time suggested that congress either make the national government the sole time fixer or leave the field entirely to the states. Officials said a similar recommendation probably will be made to the next congress, along with a recital of inconsistencies prevalent in the existing setup.

One difficulty about leaving time designation to states, the commission said in its order last week, is that those which are most economically powerful can dictate the standards of their neighbors.

"The shifting about of time standards to suit the needs of individual states or communities, either the year round or in the summer months," the commission said, "compels neighboring less powerful states to yield their equal rights of sovereignty and to concede to the powerful community the domination over time standards regardless of the effect upon neighboring communities or states, with no respect for their desires."

WORLD LABOR PACTS ADVOCATED BY BARUCH

Financier Would Write Minimum Wage Clauses in Tariff Treaties.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A solution of world economic warfare through international agreements on minimum wages and maximum hours was proposed today by Bernard M. Baruch.

The American financier and "friend of Presidents" had returned from a several days' visit with Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, of Great Britain, at the latter's country estate.

"Nations are more suspicious of one another, more grudgingly enbattled, arm more fiercely and quickly than ever before," said Baruch.

The financier, who was chairman of the United States war industrial board in 1918, visited several European countries this summer and observed conditions there which in our time and age they should enjoy.

"The maximum wage and the maximum hour have an important part—perhaps the most important—in economic warfare. In the guise of national preservation or greed, or to meet the competition of others, hours are lengthened and wages reduced to the point that results in almost inhuman conditions.

"Every economic agreement between nations should be accompanied by an understanding or formula on a minimum wage and maximum hour. Not that any nation should impose its ideas upon another, but any tariff or quota or money stabilization should have some stated minimum wage and maximum hour which a nation could not break without breaking the whole agreement.

"It is easy to see how currencies that have been stabilized or economic relations that have been agreed upon can be entirely nullified by the reduction of wages or by the lengthening of the hours of labor. This barbaric sweating of labor can jump any tariff wall or undermine any currency stabilization.

Save Crops.

"The second most important thing is agriculture, now a worldwide problem. No one is satisfied with any system of planning which stops the production of what people want to eat and wear. When nature smiles, giving bountifully of her products, why not accept them and prepare for those days when she is not in such kindly mood?

"In addition to what is being done, we should build up a new and extensive up-to-date warehouse system into which should be taken the surplus products of the soil which, as the experience over the ages has shown us, have always been 'up'."

RICHMAN, PILOT PLAN PRELIMINARY TEST HOP

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Dick Merrill, flying veteran, said tonight he and Harry Richman, the singer, would fly to Newfoundland tomorrow on a preliminary test flight to a round-trip hop to London Tuesday.

Delay in conditioning the radio of the plane caused postponement of the Newfoundland flight, scheduled for today, the flyer said.

MELTON URGES NATION TO REINFORCE DEFENSE

Griffin, Ga., Legion Committee Speaks at Chattanooga Meeting.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Quimby Melton, of Griffin, Ga., national executive committee member of the American Legion, said today present turmoil in Europe should cause the United States to reinforce its national defense to the danger of drawing this country into another world conflict would be minimized.

Melton spoke at memorial services which opened the Tennessee state Legion convention.

"The boys who gave their lives for America in the World War expect us to keep America out of war," he said, "and there is no more certain way to prevent war than to be prepared for any emergency."

Melton charged that pacifists who advocate disarmament are divided into two classes, "one that is sincere in its opinion that war can be averted by playing the big brother and disarming; the other group composed of subversive organizations who see in disarmament a weakened nation that will be seized by the revolution to overthrow government."

"The first group, though sincere," he declared, "has been misled by the socialist propaganda of the subversive group and are being used as a pawn to add respectability to the campaign to overthrow the government."

"Subversive influences will be found in every state, they will be found in our schools, in high posts of trust, and even in some of our churches."

"The sincere pacifist could know the exact plans of their allies they would shudder and join the American Legion in asking for adequate national defense for this nation," he added.

Melton said that because the American Legion advocated an adequate national defense it was often referred to as a militaristic organization.

"As a matter of fact the American Legion is the greatest peace-loving organization in America. Its members know war in all its horrors. They hate war. But they are not so foolish as to invite war by disarming the army and scrapping the navy. Preparedness for an emergency is the best insurance against war the nation can have."

LEMKE PICTURES NEW U. S. 'EMPIRE'

Chance for Youth Stressed by Candidate in Speech at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Congressman William Lemke, union party candidate for president, today pictured a midland empire on the eastern slopes of the Rocky mountains wherein the nation's youth will have an opportunity to build homes and enter the industrial field.

Materialization of the picture, Lemke said in an address before Milwaukee members of the National Union for Social Justice, would be contingent upon the success of the union party ticket in November.

Lemke said water conservation and drought prevention are provided for in a bill he introduced in the last session of congress. The bill, favorably reported, he said, is now pending before the special committee on irrigation and reclamation.

GARRETT DEFEATS BLANTON IN TEXAS

Rural County Judge Elected Congressman Over State Veteran Campaigner.

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A rural county judge new to state and national politics, stood elected today as congressman from the seventh congressional district of west Texas, unseating the veteran campaigner, Thomas L. Blanton, of Abilene.

Claude L. Garrett, of Eastland, long experienced in stumping the post-office country but never before entered in a political contest more than county wide, wrested the democratic nomination—tantamount to election—from the fiery Blanton, who had held the post for two decades with one brief interlude.

Returns to the Texas election bureau early today gave Blanton 16,938 votes to Garrett's 31,201.

In another congressional race involving an incumbent Representative, W. D. McFarlane, of the thirteenth district, had 28,635 votes to 29,973 for his opponent, Ed Gossett.

"Drift Fence," Dempsey Featured at Capitol

Another thrilling story of the old west from the prolific pen of Zane Grey, "Drift Fence," supplemented by an excellent stage show, opened yesterday at the Capitol theater for a week's engagement.

Also on the bill this week is "The Idol of Millions," with the one and only Jack Dempsey in the starring role. This film shows all the major battles of the great fighter's career, and is an interesting review of the big moments in the life of Jack.

The feature picture stars Larry Crabbe, Katherine deMille and Benny Baker, and tells a two-fold story of the great open spaces when cattle roamed at will, unhindered except for occasional raids by cattle thieves.

It was these raids that caused some of the ranchers to hit upon the idea of fencing in certain land, although the majority of landowners disapproved of the plan.

The conflict comes in the rivalry between these two factions, those who favor the open range and those who favor the fencing plan. It makes good, swift, entertaining film fare.

Of course, romance also rides the range, and plenty of action when Texas Rangers get into the cattle men's battle. The direction is able and the photography is good.

On the stage "The Hit Parade," a road show unit combining many fine vaudeville acts, is presented. Featured are Lester Harding, boy baritone; the Chessin Twins, dancers; Ben Burri, clever juggler; Clifford and Jackson, comedians; Peggy Arnet, singer, and Wainman and Mack, musical novelties.

Entire Leide's Capitols and the Roof Garden orchestra, supervised by the music. Short subjects round out the bill.

The date palm and the sycamore are the principal trees of Egypt. Many other trees, principally fruit trees, flourish there when sufficient moisture is supplied.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

INSTALLMENT XXVIII.

"Why did we bring so many people along?" Gregg asked. "I can see I'm not going to have a minute alone with you."

"You're not going to—beginning now," said Frances. "You're a delectable fiancée and got to dress for dinner. Gay, give us a tulle gown, please. Startle us and make us feel badly."

It was, in a way, good to be back in the fold again, she thought, dressing for dinner in a room in which her every whim in decoration had been carried out. The silver set on the dressing table, the linens, and bedspread all had her monogram. The field flowers she loved were in a tall vase on the bookcase. Even her favorite magazines were there.

Was this happiness, she wondered—was this triumph? Frances had ignored her on the street one day. Margo, seeing her a few months ago, had smiled lamely. Now they were her good friends again, planning to see her in the future, and reminding her that they had been friends since childhood.

She looked at herself, at the slim, graceful lines of the blue chiffon dress. She looked at the solitaire that caught the light and the diamond bracelet Gregg had given her only yesterday. Her hair was copper and shining. "I'm afraid I'll lose contact with Chris's world. I'm afraid that these people who live on a merry-go-round and take love lightly will make me lose Penny and Mac. I won't lose them! If I have to live two lives, I'll always go back to the place where I found Chris!"

At dinner Margo folded her white hands and said, "I hear so much talk about a play that's opening next week."

Frances, sleek and sophisticated in black, said, smiling, "You'll be hearing more of the playwright, darling. He's a hard-boiled newspaperman, and handsome enough to be in pictures. Imagine this! He isn't coming for the opening."

He can't be bothered. He'd rather stay in Nassau and play tennis with an English girl he's in love with."

"You know him, Gay?" Margo sighed. "You know him and you let him go."

Gay asked steadily, "Do you know the name of his play?"

"We'll Meet Again," said Margo. She danced with Fred and Jimmy that night on the moonlight deck where girls in evening dresses and men in dinner clothes sat in deck chairs and drank and smoked. "Chris, you don't know that I'm hearing it for the first time the night I'm dancing on the deck of the Fidelis with the man I'm going to marry."

It was a pleasant week-end in the sunshine. The girls made a pretty picture in brilliantly colored pajamas, slacks and shorts.

Gay tried to feel the warmth and sincerity of their friendship, but again she felt as if she were an outsider, looking in at smart worldly people whose talk was clever repartee and who made crude remarks about the people who weren't there.

"Barbara married terribly beneath herself," Frances said. "We won't be seeing much of her any more."

Margo pursued the Swedish count and Frances retorted impudently by flirting with him.

When the launch brought them ashore Monday morning, Gay was glad that the week-end was over. After saying good-bye to her guests, smiling a little wearily at them, she rode back to the penthouse with Millicent and Gregg, thinking that her life when she was married would be an endless series of such week-ends, entertaining people whose sole purpose in life was to be entertained, smoothing lovers' quarrels and watching girls flirt with other women's husbands.

Millicent said, "My maid is packing and I've made plane reservations to Florida. I do hope the house is nice, Gay. You can keep open house in season and have the most amusing people to entertain you. You won't be bored."

She was bored now, she was thinking, bored and tired. She wanted to see Penny, and talk and laugh with Penny, who had no malice in her for anyone and who was amusing without effort.

Gregg put his arm around her. "Mother wants you to be glorified hostess to the world. You should be, darling. You put people at ease and listen beautifully. When Mother leaves, I'm going to run down and take a look at the Fidelis again."

"He's in love with that boat," said Millicent.

Gay said, smiling, "Please don't love the boat too much, Gregg."

"Will you be lonely here without me?" Millicent asked.

"I'll miss you."

But she would go to see Penny and Mac and talk about Chris' play and feel as if her heart would burst. She would go to see Penny and Mac and talk about Chris' play and feel as if her heart would burst.

At last, she would go to see Penny and Mac and talk about Chris' play and feel as if her heart would burst.

lebrities, cried, "There's Gay Van Avery!"

She was on the crest again, she thought, as they walked into the theater and people nodded and smiled at them. On the crest, but her heart and mind for days had echoed with the words, "We'll Meet Again," written to her across the sea by Chris Mallory who wasn't here tonight and who cared nothing for fame and adulation, while she was on display as another beautiful thing the Bandoleros possessed like their yacht and penthouse and the new house in Florida.

In the box she turned and tried to find Penny. Yesterday Penny had said, "I'll probably sit in the balcony because I don't have a new dress. But I'll wear my red dress so you can find me, Gay, before the curtain goes up, say a little prayer. It means so much to all of us."

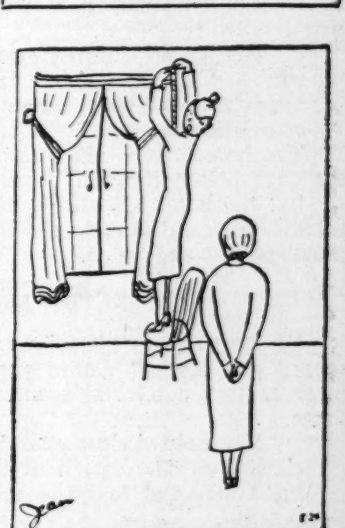

Then, through the glasses, she saw a red dress and dancing, dark bangs high in the balcony. Penny looked both excited and frightened. Her sweet, red mouth was trembling. Then Gay saw Mac's lean figure beside his wife. They looked at each other long and tenderly and said something. Gay thought, "Penny and Mac have what mother calls the most important thing. I'm going to miss the most important thing and feel empty and shallow when I see people like them."

Gregg touched her arm. "You're cold, Gay. One would think you had a personal interest in this play."

"If it is a success," she said quietly, "it will be a well-deserved success for the man who wrote it."

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

When the New Tenant Starts Bussing the Old Tenant Around.

Those forlorned people who choose an apartment two months before the old tenants move out of it should be kept on a leash until moving day. When they are allowed to run loose they get the idea that the new apartment is already theirs. They want to measure the floors for rugs, and they want to measure the windows for curtains. They take a person's weakest and handsomest chair to stand on when they start their tape measure routine. They've even been known to ask the lady of the house to help hold the chair for them.

They get the habit of dropping in every afternoon to ask about the stove or to decide how they want to arrange their furniture. They're especially bad if they are brides.

The only way to handle them is to stop answering the doorbell once they've started coming around. Tell your friends to come up the fire escape.

Remember this: When you choose an apartment that's still occupied, it's still somebody's home, even if it was for rent. It won't be yours until moving day.

BLACK BEARS.

Black bears are the most common on our continent. They are found now and then in most parts of Canada, and in many mountain and forest parts of the United States and Mexico. It is supposed that the total number is about a quarter of a million, perhaps half as many as lived in North America when white people came to settle.

Fish, pigs and other animals help to make up the diet of bears. They even eat insects. When mayflies are washed to the shore of a lake or stream, a hungry bear may be there to get them. Ants are lapped up from the ground and there are times when bees are swallowed.

Black bears (and other kinds of bears as well) like honey, and that explains how they happen to eat bees now and then. They go to hollows in trees where the bees have stored honey, and eat the sweet liquid as fast as they can. They may "hurl" with pain" when bees begin to sting them, but they do not run away until the pain seems too great. While at the hive, they gobble up honey, wax, bee grubs, and sometimes the fullgrown bees.

Most black bears, but not all, have black hair. Some members of the tribe have brown hair, and others have bluish or gray coats. Now and then one cub in a black bear den has black hair, while the other has brown hair.

The cruel, exultant eyes of the Indians followed Ula Dale as two of their number hurried her against the dreadful man-eating plant. The short, supersensitive leaves at the base of the growth snapped around the lower part of her body and held her in a solid grip.

Then the upper fronds, swaying and dipping like some conscious, animate thing, began gradually to enfold the terror-stricken girl. The Indians broke into a mystic chant as the chief intoned: "The Great Destroyer is pleased. His gnawing hunger will be appeased."

George stood by helplessly, unable to understand why his constant pressure on the rabbit's foot did not effect some miracle to free the girl. "Must be the wrong kind of rabbit's foot for this crazy jungle," he muttered ruefully. "Oh, I wish Mr. Tarzan was here!"

Nikma, in truth, had already found Tarzan. "She! Danger!" he screamed. The bewildered monkey was somewhat vague, however, about this new monkey as Tarzan sped away like the wind, aware that he must face a formidable combination of cruel men and unfeling Nature!
